Word by wire at a late hour on Wednesday evening stated that Wilfred Bartlett, youngest brother of the editor of The Enterprise, had been fatally injured in a motor accident at Chatham, Ontario, while enroute from Newfoundland to visit his brothers at Detroit and Blairmore. No particulars of the accident were given.

Wilfred, accompanied by two chums, left Corner Brook, Newfoundland, on June the 6th, intending to motor from North Sydney to the Pacific coast and back.

Deceased, who was about 37 years of age, is survived by his wife and young son; his mother, aged 86; four brothers, Allan at Corner Brook, Nfld., Charles at Petries, Nfld., Robert at Detroit and W. J. in Blairmore; and one sister, Mrs. John A. Petrie, at Bishop Falls, Newfoundland.

THE COAL COLUMN

(By Rev. R. Upton, Publicity Section of the Crows' Nest Pass Coal Committee)

The Coal Committee met Friday last and deliberated in a four-hour session. A report was received from Mr. O. A. Botter, who outlined his work as organizer in the Drumheller district, where a number of meetings were held and strong committees formed, similar to our local set up. Mr. Botter stated that he was well received, and found the miners of the valley all too ready to co-operate in every way possible to improve the coal industry of the West.

A new itinerary was arranged for this week, to include a series of mass meetings to be held at Michel, Fernie, Coleman, Hillcrest and Bellevue, after which the committee will convene and decide on future policies.

Up to time of writing, reports are in from meetings held at Fernie and Michel. Good meetings are reported from both camps, especially at Fernie, where the economic situation is more acute than at Michel, where some recent improvement in working days is noted. But at Fernie there are some 550 on relief, state the organizers, and the only interest that seemed to be left was being spent in battling relief authorities for sufficient allowance on which to live.

To expedite the work of organizing the various camps, a second organizer was decided upon. In the person of Mr. Jack Brooks, of Bellevue, who is now in the field assisting in the work with Mr. Botter.

Little or no opposition is being encountered in the camps. The miners are ready to grasp at any straw that will lift them out of their distress, which has been rampant in nearly all the coal mining centres for the past seven years.

No one will question the wisdom of bringing these facts out into the open, that our governments and the people of Canada as a whole will know exactly what is happening in a province that can boast of having 87% of Canada's coal reserves. Out of our tremendous supply, estimated by Dr. J. A. Allan as $7,512,220,000 tons of coal, we can only find a market for 5,462,894 tons for 1935, and over 3,600,000 tons of this amount is consumed in our own province.

Our case is strong for the eastern market, and to this end we must spend our energy. Our aim should be towards a national policy of "Canadian Coal for Canadians."

SAFE DRIVING MEDALS ARE AWARDED

Medals for safely driving distances of over 50,000 miles without even minor accidents of any kind have been awarded three Calgary drivers of the Canadian Greyhound Bus Lines, Ltd., by the National Safety Council, Inc.

One-year medals were awarded James Tait, of Lethbridge, and Guy Brownell, who both have safe mileages of over 50,000. All seven are employees of the Greyhound lines, and their performance records were made throughout all road and weather conditions.

A daughter was born last week to Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jones, of Calgary. Mrs. Jones was formerly Miss Sarah Gillain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Florin Gillain, of Blairmore.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Hornig, of Cowley, announced the engagement of their youngest daughter, Avis Marguerite, to Mr. Louis Clovis Bonnier, son of Mrs. P. Bonnier, of Cowley, the marriage to take place July 3rd.

NEWS FROM EDMONTON (By C. H. Stout)

Edmonton, June 14.—Skeptics laughed when William Aberhart, B.A., asserted back in the fiery period of 1933 that the fountain pen was a major factor in his proposed revolutionary scheme of government. They didn't know that as time went on such derision would be thoroughly squelched.

Admitting that credit and prosperity may not have flowed from the pen point as promised, and expected dividends failed to come along for monthly endorsement, there still must be taken into consideration the part the fountain pen has played in affairs of state within the last twelve months. What about the covenants signed in their thousands by the pens of the people? What about the resolutions and petitions poured in upon government and anti-government members from the pen of social credit groups? Finally, what about the latest "pledge" from the pens of worthy legislators themselves that a true view be observed of the March 1936 credit board, mayhaps in consultation with Major C. H. Douglas, shall have had ample time to bring in a new economic plan.

In the face of these facts, who now has the temerity to maintain that the fountain pen has failed under the new orientation of democracy? Who will deny that the pen for the time being is mightier than the ballot, and mightily clutched that such is the case, for who wanted an election anyhow?

Another week's layoff for assembly members witnessed drastic changes in the political picture. Insurgents hoped the delay would strengthen their position. It had the opposite effect. Premier Aberhart, whose personality and leadership now in the contentious issue rather than social credit policies undoubtedly is settled back in the saddle again after having a foot out of the stirrup and holding precariously to the saddle.

The white dove of expediency, if not of amity and good will, came in due course from the sheltered recesses of Big Tree Court in London where the father of social credit, Major C. H. Douglas, keeps a watchful eye on the Alberta Experiment and anon pulls out his fountain pen and writes a book about it.

Chairman Glen MacLachlan, Coronation, who set about defying Mr. Aberhart's sovereignty at the beginning of the year, and in March by acting as chairman of the insurgent committee, came back last week from the coronation and Douglas as head of Alberta's social credit board, and brought along a Douglas emissary in the person of a sprightly person of George Frederick Powell, of London, who declared he was here "to learn and teach" and primarily to report to his chief if unity among social credit members in the house was possible.

Insurgents erroneously suspected that Mr. Powell would be on of having said, inasmuch as Major Douglas even in his latest literary offering spoke disparagingly of Mr. Aberhart's leadership, and social credit intentions. But Mr. Powell publicly declared the premier "a very nice man," and added Mr. MacLachlan and the government in selling the general caucus the idea of a signed pledge as a guarantee of unity in future efforts to initiate a scheme of social credit. Members singing are pledged to uphold the board and its technicians, and to cease enjoining the object of the agreement without date excepting that it remains in force until the board's technicians shall submit a plan, all "recommitments for the past and provocative utterances in the future." The agreement required that to be effective at least 60 per cent of the members of the assembly should be represented on the dotted line. Even opposition members were asked to sign. Insurgents were at first divided but subsequently the majority attached their names to the document, which adhered to the principle of $25 a month dividends for all bona fide citizens.

Mr. MacLachlan assured the caucus that Major Douglas, if guaranteed action among the members, would most surely proffer his advice and possibly come to Alberta to help initiate the new order. Mr. Powell substantiated the pledge that Premier Aberhart would be prevented from weekly radio attacks on their position for the period of the year.

Their interpretations, notwithstanding, it will be readily seen by the public at large, which sometimes has something to do with affairs of state, that Mr. Aberhart is again secure in office for another few months at least and will be free to make further changes in his cabinet as he deems fit, and carry on plans to spend the present budget and lay the groundwork for another. In behalf of Major Douglas the social credit board chairman said the London expert saw no reason why the present budget should not be passed, because the whole system was orthodox until changed.

Before prorogation, a second Douglas expert will have arrived in Edmonton to help along with the social credit venture. Expenses of the experts have already been said to the extent of more than $3,000.

Dante Ubertino, of Basano, was successful in passing his normal school training, and will receive a first-class certificate. Dante was a former Blairmore school boy.

COMMUNISTS OUT- LINE PROGRAMME

Adopting a widespread programme dealing with public works, unemployment, taxation, increased coal orders, farmers' needs, youth re-establishment, old age pensions, compensation administration, minimum wage act, re-establishment of the department of labor, elimination of deposits for provincial candidates and extension of voting franchise, the conference sponsored by the Communist party came to a conclusion here on Sunday evening with the holding of a well-attended mass meeting in the new community hall.

A committee of eight was selected to give publicity to this programme, arrange for meetings and press.

Fifty-five delegates from all parts of the Rocky Mountain constituency and southeastern British Columbia, representing various organizations, were in attendance. Speakers on Sunday evening included Tom Uphill, M.P., of Fernie; A. Young, Blairmore, and others.

Dr. Alice J. McDonald, Fernie-born woman who received her degree in medicine at Alberta University with a scholarship in 1933, has been selected as one of the two who will be sent to the University of Colorado for an eight-week course in the work.

Science And World Peace

In the past few years, and even in the past few months, science has made remarkable contributions in the direction of prolongation of human life in the fields of both surgery and medicine.

In support of the foregoing statement, reference only is necessary to the daily newspapers, for very few days pass without the announcement of some new medical discovery of importance to the human race or of some new extension into the realm of surgical science, in some part of the globe.

Diseases to which human flesh is prone are being conquered one by one and the severity of other diseases which have not yet entirely succumbed to laboratory or other experimental treatment is being mitigated, either in the field of preventive medicine or by new forms of treatment.

As a result of this wide spread experimentation and treatment the span of human life is being gradually but surely lengthened with prospects of further increases in life expectancy as discoveries progress on geometric scale.

In Washington recently Dr. Parran, surgeon-general of the United States announced that in the last 50 years the average length of life of men has increased from 38 to 61 years and that of women from 40 to 64 years.

He predicted that in the next few years the incidence of heart disease, a greater killer than cancer, will be materially reduced as a result of the present drive to control and eradicate syphilis, a contributing cause of heart failure, and said that considerable progress in lengthening the lives of cancer sufferers may be expected in the next few years as a result of campaigns to educate the public to the fact that the disease is curable in its early stages. There are prospects that even the common cold will be banished in the near future.

All this is so much to the good, and in this field science is conferring great benefits upon humanity, but, on the other hand, science is also being utilized as a handmaiden to the god, Mars, for the destruction of the human race on a wholesale scale.

As an agent of destruction human life science is being harnessed and requisitioned at a tremendous rate. Since the Great War of 1914-18, new engines of warfare have been developed capable of carnage which will make the slaughter in the former war look puny by comparison. New gases have been evolved capable of creating tremendous havoc among civilian populations as well as fighting forces, and the range and power of instruments of destruction have been increased enormously, so much so, that it is sometimes asserted, with possibly a degree of truth, that another major war has been averted to date, only because of the fear of the consequences.

While it is impossible to make a comparison on a mathematical basis of the life-saving and life-destroying possibilities of scientific achievement, it is probably not a far-fetched guess that greater strides have been made in the destructive field in the past decade than in the beneficial one.

One is sometimes tempted to ask, "What is the use of expending money and brains in bending science to the service of mankind to save and prolong life and to promote health and happiness, if the same agency is to be utilized to destroy humanity on a grand scale?"

Nevertheless, the energy and treasure spent on research and experimentation in the medical arena is worth while for the benefits they confer on suffering humanity in better health and life extension; in the hope that governments which are flitting with wholesale murder and rapine will come to their senses, or that the rank and file of their subjects will bring such pressure to bear upon them that they will not dare to push them over the brink of the precipice which appears to gape for them.

With this triflingness in prospect for the next great international conflagration and with the usefulness of the League of Nations as a practical preventive of war in the discard, at any rate for the time being, people of the world, and more particularly those of the democratic countries, are looking around for some agency or some measures that will ensure peace and prevent a slaughter that might well rock the world to its foundations. Various suggestions have been made, not the least interesting of which is a proposal for some sort of pact or understanding among the democratic nations as an insurance policy of self-preservation and this may be the practical solution of the problem to-day.

An alliance of the chief Anglo-Saxon democracies—the British Empire and the United States—together with the northern European democracies in the interests of the maintenance of world peace would appear to be a powerful curb on those countries which might desire to precipitate conflict or even the most powerful coalition of war-minded nations, if such an alliance can be brought about.

London Magistrate Gave Reckless Driver Most Inadequate Sentence

A man of 29 years was in court at London, Ont., and the charge was reckless driving.

All he had done was to crash into the rear of another machine on the road, go through three two-inch planks on the side of a railway overhead bridge, plunge over an embankment and land on top of a tree.

Court decided he should pay $25 and costs or go to jail for three months. Likewise it was considered advisable that his permit to drive a car should be suspended for three months.

It may be that by the end of three months the young man will have reformed; or again he may have conceived a new set of tricks which he can try when he starts driving again. —Peterborough Examiner.

Opinion Is Wrong

Danish Bacon Is Not Superior To Canadian Product

The erroneous opinion is entertained in some quarters that Danish bacon sells at a higher figure than Canadian on the British market, largely because the Landrace swine, from which Danish bacon is made, are superior to our native bacon breeds. The real situation is this: The Danes are allowed to ship only so much bacon to the British market; they are on a quota basis. Naturally they cull their product very closely, sending only the best. Moreover, it sometimes happens that there is not enough Danish bacon on the British market to supply the demand, and the price is consequently enhanced. The Danes could take our good strains of Yorkshire and maintain the same relative position in the British trade.

In Canada the Landrace swine under test at Ottawa have not proved to be highly superior to our own best bacon strains. Certainly they are a good breed of hogs, but it is doubtful whether they would prove to be enough better than the Yorkshire breed to warrant their introduction and distribution in this Dominion. That would mean the establishment of a new breed, and annual importations from countries where foot and mouth disease is always present. Our import regulations would have to be drastically revised, and that in turn would bring us into conflict with health regulations governing our export of live stock to United States. No, the adoption of the Landrace breed is not the solution of our problem. It would only create new ones for us to face.

New York Locksmith Opened Jewels Chests For Spanish Rebels

Charles A. Courtney, New York locksmith, returned from Europe after spending four weeks as a royal-hired "Jimmy Valentine" picking the locks of six jewel chests owned by the Spanish Bourbon family. The chests, removed from Madrid when King Alfonso fled Spain in 1931, had defied the attempts of Europe's leading locksmiths to open them.

Courtney said he was unable to estimate the value of the jewels he saw.

"I don't know what they were worth, but I know I made enough on the trip to buy up a $50,000 collection of rare locks and keys from the Rothschild family, Count Dillingier of Vienna and the heirs of the Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria," he said.

While in London, Courtney attended a meeting of "buried treasure" hunters interested in salvaging valuables aboard the ill-fated S.S. Lusitania, which was torpedoed by a German U-boat on May 7, 1915, off the coast of Ireland, and sank with the loss of 1,198 lives. He said the group decided to abandon the enterprise because there was no gold on the ship.

The Press Keeps Pace

Publications In Canada Have Long Record Of Advertising Service

In a country as young as Canada, one does not expect to find many individual business enterprises with a history going back as far as 1850. Yet the Canadian publication industry can boast of 10 daily newspapers, 17 weekly newspapers, three religious periodicals and one magazine, all in active operation, that had their beginnings earlier than the middle of last century. That makes 31 publications, each of which is 87 years old or older. And if the honor roll were to begin at 60, there would be 206 publications that would qualify, 199 of them being in Eastern Canada, the part settled first. To-day there are many media available to advertisers, but none with the long and distinguished record of useful service, both to advertisers and the public, that is the boast of the press of Canada.—Sarnia Canadian Observer.

Letter Was Delayed

A post-card that has had 25½ years of unknown history arrived at the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce recently. It was post-marked December 5, 1911, from A. D. Cartwright, at that time secretary of the Board of Railway Commissioners, Ottawa, and addressed to F. P. Fisher, then secretary of the Chamber.

In 1981 Great Britain imported 40,000 cwts. of Canadian bacon and in 1936 this increased to 1,062,401 cwts. This is entirely due to the Empire trade agreements.

Great Believer In Canada

Experimental Station Official Thinks It Best Place To Live

Canada offers more to the individual than any other nation in the world, Superintendent W. R. Reek of the Western Ontario Experimental station told members of the Men's Association of the Erie street United Church in Ridgeway, Ontario, at a luncheon at which he was the guest speaker.

"As a member of the British Commonwealth of nations, the security and satisfaction offered by Canada is not lessened but enhanced and the future of the individual liberty under such is also guaranteed," he said. "Then let us stay here and be loyal to our country, our Empire and our King."

Interesting facts about Canada mentioned by Mr. Reek included information concerning its rivers, the Mackenzie including the Peace is 2,525 miles in length, the St. Lawrence with the lakes 1,900 miles, Nelson, including the south Saskatchewan 1,600 miles and the Churchill 1,000 miles long. Canada's fisheries produce 569 species of fish and exports to the value of $50,000,000 go annually to 100 different countries; in forest wealth, Canada is third to Russia and Brazil and second in the production of paper, the government controlling nine-tenths of the forest; out of Canada's two and a quarter billion acres of land only 71,000,000 acres are cultivated.

An interesting fact concerning the canal at Sault Ste. Marie was told by Mr. Reek: "In 1929 the canal at Sault Ste. Marie had three times the tonnage of the Panama Canal, and more than the Panama Canal and the Suez put together."

Rare Currency Destroyed

Duplicate Of U.S. Notes Were Property Of Late Henry Green

A suitcase full of rare currency was taken to pieces and burned at the U.S. Treasury. Authorities said it would have been worth $1,000,000 in the open market.

They disclosed the currency was from a collection started by the late Henry Green, once rated the world's wealthiest woman.

It was turned over to the Treasury for its face value of $198,176.

The collection is one of the most valuable in the world, officials said, containing two sets of all notes ever issued by the Federal Government. Explaining why the Green estate handed over currency worth $1,000,000 for less than a fifth of that figure, officials said James Wade, of the Chase National Bank at New York, had advised this was done. They said Wade suggested that, where the collection contained more than two of any type of note, the extras should be redeemed.

The usual Treasury policy is to destroy redundant currency when it is of a kind no longer being issued. This had the effect of making the remaining Green collection more valuable, it was said, by reducing the number of rare notes outstanding.

The Punishment

Noted Inventor Died Poor

Received Very Little For Perfecting Process For Engraving

Frederick Eugene Ives, who did more to develop modern newspaper and magazine illustration than any other man, died in Philadelphia at the age of 81 after a long illness.

It was Ives who invented the halftone process of photoengraving which permitted reproduction of photographs and even paintings with great fidelity and artistry.

Before the perfection of the halftone (in which a screen of almost invisible dots is used in reproducing pictures to bring out the gradations of tone), most newspaper illustrations were made from wood cuts and the effect often was crude.

Ives also devised the intaglio plates which preceded the rotogravure supplements. He was a pioneer in color photography and invented the modern form of the binocular microscope.

Ives' inventions more than 70 patents on his inventions. But he failed to patent the halftone process because the first firm that employed it hoped to keep the system a secret and instead of becoming a millionaire, the inventor, in his later years, had barely enough on which to live.

Although he became partly blind as he reached old age, Ives continued his research, especially in the field of color photography, with his usual enthusiasm.

17,673,000 Miles Of Flies

How Long Would It Take To Kill Each One?

From May 1st to September 30th, it is estimated that a female housefly would have approximately 5,588,720,000,000 descendants! Supposing a fly is a fifth of an inch long and all these flies were laid end to end, there would be more than 17,673,000 miles of flies.

This sounds like a serious problem, but, fortunately, they don't all live and people instead of bothering about putting them end to end, put them to an end once and for all.

And the best time to do the killing is when the flies first appear. Each fly killed then eliminates the danger of millions later.

Flies are a nuisance to health, they carry the germs of summer diarrhoea, typhoid and other dangerous diseases. Not a word of good can be said in their favour.

There's only one way to keep down the menace. Breeding places such as uncovered garbage, refuse, manure, rotting matter of any kind should be eliminated. Screens on doors and windows and coverings for all food and drink should be used. But, best of all, if flies do enter the home, have a few Wilson's Fly Pads placed around. If used regularly according to directions, they will kill all of the flies in short order.

Sensitive Instrument

New Earthquake Recording Instrument In Use At Ottawa

The Royal Society of Canada was told of a new earthquake recording instrument so sensitive it picks up vibrations of traffic several miles away.

Ernest A. Hodgson, seismologist at the Dominion Observatory in Ottawa, told the physical sciences section of the society the observatory has acquired one of the instruments of which there are not more than a dozen in the world. It is called the Bernoff seismograph and makes a record of vertical tremors only, that is those shocks which start deep in the earth and travel upwards.

The recording is photographic. Vibrations of the instrument cause a beam of light to move up and down along a piece of photographic paper fastened to a revolving drum. In the Bernoff machine there are two recording components, one for quakes of short duration and the other for those that last a long time.

One of the difficulties associated with older types of seismographs was that when the recording unit was opened the machine had to be stopped. The result was if a quake occurred during the operation, the record was lost and the operators left it alone as far as possible.

With the Bernoff instrument, it will be possible for the seismologist to remove the record of a brief quake—they are usually more or less local—while the long-time record continues uninterrupted.

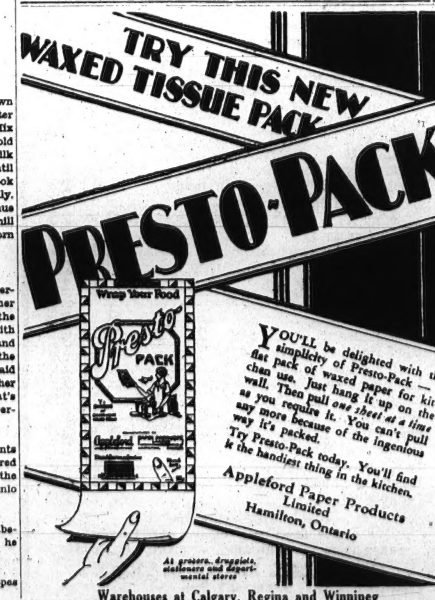

Dr. Hodgson said the machine cannot be operated at full sensitivity in Ottawa because it picks up tremors from the city almost continually. Tremors made by heavy trucks, passing trains or blasting.

It has been adjusted to work without such a hair trigger, but it is still sensitive enough to pick up a quake that might be felt anywhere in Canada or the United States.

An AHD To Research

A brief story in the Baltimore Sun recently relates that the Johns Hopkins University is card-indexing the diseases of its patients as an aid to research. TRIBUTES PAID TO MEMORY OF SIR ROBT. BORDEN

Ottawa.—For an uninterrupted decade prime minister of Canada, great Imperial statesman, a scholar of wide attainments and a man of vast human sympathies, Sir Robt. Borden died on the threshold of his 83rd year.

With him was snuffed one more of the few remaining links which attach the Dominion of 1937, with colonial Canada of pre-Confederation. His life spanned the story of the Dominion, in the shaping of whose future Sir Robert himself played a noteworthy part.

From government buildings here flags fluttered at half-mast, and wherever men gathered the name of Sir Robert Borden was on the lips of all. Tributes from the notables of the land were quickly voiced.

Since he withdrew from the active direction of national affairs 16 years ago, Sir Robert had spent the twilight of his life in pursuits which contributed much to the consolidation of Canada's constitutional position. His wide practical experience in administration, bracketing as it did the years of the Great War, was the background to scholarly studies which enriched and illumined the pages of this country's post-war history.

To a peculiar degree Sir Robert held the warmest affections of one particular section of the community. The war veterans of Canada looked to him. No man in public life received from them that unstinted admiration which they reserved solely for their war-time premier. To his ex-soldier admirers, he was always the courteous, patient and kindly "grand old man".

Deeply affected at word of Sir Robert Borden's death, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, in London, expressed heartfelt sympathy to Mr. Borden and regret he was absent from Ottawa.

"The passing of Sir Robert Borden will be deeply felt throughout Canada and the British Commonwealth, as indeed it will be in many countries outside of the empire," Premier King said in paying tribute to Sir Robert.

"To Lady Borden, who shared Sir Robert's life through well nigh half a century, there will be extended nationwide sympathy.

"Through the period of nearly nine years during which he had held office as prime minister, his personality and leadership were the dominant feature of the political life of Canada," Prime Minister King said of Sir Robert.

"To the close of his life he continued to identify himself with efforts to remove the cause of misunderstandings among nations, and further world peace. His name, pen and influence were constantly enlisted on behalf of great cultural, national and international causes.

"His dignity and courage, his patriotic outlook and integrity won for him an enduring place in the esteem and regard of his fellow men irrespective of political affiliation. His disinterested service in years of war and peace, in office and in retirement, strengthened the best tradition of public life.

"The name of Sir Robert Borden will always be in association with the part which the Dominion played in the Great War and with those constitutional developments which took place during its course and at its close, and which served to secure fuller appreciation of the nationhood of Canada."

Works On Relief Gang

Seventy-Year-Old Widow Would Rather Work Than Sleep

Nain, Centre, Ont.—Ann Sofia Tenho, 70-year-old widow, would rather work than sleep—and that's why she joined a relief work gang. She put in three days with a wheelbarrow and shovel, graveling a railroad approach, in return for a $5 relief stipend.

Councillor George Thurlow, chairman of the relief committee for this district, 30 miles west of Sudbury, found her name included with those who worked on the new railway crossing here. Women were not required to earn their relief so the councillor inquired how it came about from the three men assigned to the job.

"Yes," they told him, "Mrs. Tenho worked on the job. She worked for three days." They knew she was not expected to work but she insisted and there wasn't much they could do about it. Clad in men's overalls, shirt and heavy work boots, the farm woman did her share of work.

Mrs. Tenho had heard men were going to gravel the railroad approach in return for relief vouchers so when the job started she walked three miles from her small farm to the crossing, pushing a heavy wheelbarrow and equipped with a shovel. Mrs. Tenho saw nothing unusual in her actions when she was questioned. "I want to eat in the winter so I have to work," she said. "I don't work, I sleep."

Forced To Move Camp

Terror Of India's Hills Has Again Avoided Troops

Bombay.—The Fakir of Ipi has "bumped it." The elusive terror of the Indian northwest frontier avoided troops who bore swiftly down on the Arsal Kot, Waziristan, cave where the "villain" lived for three months.

The cave was empty. The red-haired frebrand, whose "holly war" against the British raj has cost the lives of 50 British and Indian troops and varied.

Authorities reported the operation was successful as the fakir was forced to move camp and abandon his activities temporarily.

The 36-year-old fanatic has scores of hideouts in the struggling, scrubland hills and ravines of the district. While his activities only recently have come to a fore, the fakir has been a thorn in the side of government for 12 years.

PLACE THE BLAME FOR ACCIDENT TO DESTROYER

London.—The British governments blame Spanish insurgents for the mine which the British destroyer Hunter hit off Almeria last May 13, with loss of eight of her crew and injuries to 24. A formal protest was dispatched to General Francisco Franco.

The foreign office instructed Sir Henry Chilton, British ambassador to Spain who is now at Hendaye, France, to relay the protest to insurgent headquarters at Salamanca. It termed the Hunter explosion an "accident," but a spokesman said reports to British authorities indicated the insurgents had laid mines in the high off Almeria and elsewhere. One of these, it was asserted, caused the Hunter incident.

Almeria is a Spanish government-held port which the insurgents have tried to blockade. More recently it was shelled by German warships in retaliation for Spanish government bombing of the pocket battleship Deutschland.

At the time of the Hunter incident there were some reports the destroyer had been torpedoed. These were subsequently dispelled upon investigation.

In the move the British government reserved the right to claim damages.

Gibraltar.—When the British destroyer Hunter was holed off the coast of Spain that was just the beginning of her troubles.

Plan Is Opposed By Speaker At Labor Conference

Geneva.—The international labor conference was told by a representative of Canadian employers that "workers must choose between increased incomes and increased leisure."

Alexander R. Goldie, of Galt, Ont., the speaker, opposed the 40-hour work week, saying there was no difference between reducing hours while living wages were unchanged and reducing the rate of production.

He stressed the need for investigating middlemen's profits and contended the conference was devoting too much attention to raising the standard in countries where the standard was comparatively high and too little time in bettering conditions in low-standard countries.

Goldie recommended increased production as a means of increasing national income. He said that was the only way to improve standards.

Newspapers caught up with the Smiths to learn the story. Said Mrs. Smith: "It just happens we met the driver and his cab when we were in Washington last week. We liked them both and since we wanted to tour the United States and Canada—why, we simply engaged them."

Serving Additional Sentence

Forger Carried On His Work While In Prison

Georgetown, British Guiana.—Described by the supreme court judge who sentenced him as a "mastermind of elaborate and ingenious fraud," a convicted forger started on an additional sentence of 15 years on conviction of forging wills while in prison.

Chiragally Khan, 30-year-old former lawyer's clerk, had the term added to the 10-year sentence he started four years ago for forgery.

Evidence at the trial, at which Khan conducted his own defence, purported to show Khan apparently had become "paralyzed" in his hands and feet shortly after he started his first sentence. Removed to hospital for treatment, he was said to have forged wills of three other patients, despite his supposed infirmity.

Confederates outside the hospital were named beneficiaries of the men and collected the estates when the patients died. One of Khan's confederates was sentenced to seven years in penitentiary and another to three years.

TRADE TREATY BETWEEN CANADA AND U.S. ENDORSED

London.—The Canada-United States trade treaty was openly endorsed in the House of Commons by Oliver Stanbury, new president of the board of trade in succession to Walter Runciman.

Stanley spoke in the course of a debate on the government's finance bill which developed into a wide discussion of imperial preference.

He declared he did not believe the Canada-United States agreement was out of harmony with the principle of imperial preference or that separate agreements between empire nations and foreign countries would interfere with that policy.

Belief that a trade agreement between Great Britain and the United States would not be irreconcilable with the principle of imperial preference was expressed by Stanley. He declared he did not believe a United States agreement was out of harmony with the principle of imperial preference or that separate agreements with foreign countries would impinge on imperial preference.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal, said he considered the Canada-United States agreement a remarkable step forward from the Ottawa agreements. Economic weapons, such as tariffs and quotas, he said, bred military armaments such as battleships, tanks and bombers.

Opposition to outside agreements by Great Britain and advocacy of a strict policy of empire preference came from Leopold Amery, Conservative and former Dominions secretary.

Concerning a possible agreement with the United States, Amery pointed out Britain had an adverse balance of trade with that country and declared it would be up to the government to prove that this was not allowed to grow but also rectify it.

Every £1,000,000 spent on empire trade, Amery urged, strengthened "one of the partners in the defence of our system."

They were the only partners to whom Britain could look in the present state of the world, he said, with complete confidence that they would rally to her side in any just cause.

Amery warned the United States "may have to face a substantial increase in our duties against them," and added:

"It is impossible to get back to the gold standard as long as that greater creditor nation still is forcing its exports upon us and refusing to take an excess of imports."

H. B. Lees-Smith, Labor, said the United Kingdom must not lose control of her tariff policy at a time when it was most essential to have a free hand.

F. J. Bellenger, Labor, cited Article 16 of the Canada-United States treaty as indicating Canada and Britain anticipated some imperial preferences would be affected by an agreement between Britain and the United States.

Sir Edward Grigg, Conservative, said the government proposed to continue the various preferences regarding sugar which affected the West Indies and other colonies which had suffered from Britain's fiscal policies in the past.

Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, said discussions with the United States on a possible trade agreement "have been purely informal and exploratory" in character. "We have kept the Dominions informed as to what is going on," he added.

RIVALRY SEEN FOR AIR LINES OVER NORTH ATLANTIC

New York.—Prospect of a three-cornered rivalry for commercial aeroplane business over the North Atlantic is seen following announcement that French and German lines intend to enter the trade.

They would compete with the projected service via Newfoundland and Canada, in which Imperial Airways of Great Britain and Pan-American Airways of the United States plan to co-operate.

An survey flights for the Anglo-American service were planned for late this month, announcement was made in Berlin that Luft Hansa, state-subsidized company, hoped to establish air mail service between Frankfurt-on-Main and New York next month. From Paris came word Air France and the French (Steamship) Line had formed a company to provide air service to the United States.

The announcement from Berlin indicated the Germans might be flying planes regularly to the United States before the Anglo-American project passed the survey stage.

Only last week Imperial Airways and Pan-American made their final survey flights between Washington, N.Y., and Bermuda, preliminary to establishment of regular passenger service.

The 775-mile link is to be a part of one of two trans-Atlantic routes planned under the project, which contemplates mail and passenger service to North America over the "great circle" route, via Newfoundland, a distance of 3,400 miles.

An alternative or winter route is planned via Bermuda, the Azores, Madeira and Portugal, some 1,400 miles longer.

Grain Probe For Britain

Turgeon Commission To Take Evidence Across Atlantic

Ottawa.—Bound for the United Kingdom and possibly the continent to continue his inquiry into the grain business, Mr. Justice W. F. A. Turgeon has sailed from Montreal.

Hon. W. D. Euler, minister of trade and commerce, definitely announced the Turgeon royal grain inquiry commission which has just completed a series of hearings in western Canada would continue its work on the other side of the Atlantic.

Accompanying the judge, who is the sole member of the commission, will be Hon. J. L. Ralston, commission counsel, and the staff of the commission.

It is understood R. H. Milliken, K.C., of Regina, counsel for the wheat pools; Isaac Pitblado, K.C., A. E. Darby, counsel and secretary of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange; and George McMor of the Canadian wheat board will represent their respective interests at the overseas inquiry.

The work will start without delay on arrival of the commission in England but definite plans will be made on arrival. It is understood formal hearings such as were held in Western Canada will not be held.

The commission will invite such experts as it wishes to give evidence.

Submits New Design

Latest Pattern For Canadian Flag Has No Union Jack

Swift Current.—A distinctive Canadian national flag has been designed by E. G. Westlake, of this city for submission to the secretary of state. Three former designs by Mr. Westlake have been previously submitted to Ottawa and have been favorably commented on by federal authorities.

Unlike many patterns for a Canadian national flag, Mr. Westlake's design contains no Union Jack, which he claims is considered by students of heraldry improper, the tradition of the art not permitting the placing of the Jack in the upper quarter near the staff, as this would signify the dominance of the British Empire over the members of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The new design has a royal blue shield bordered on a red field. In the centre of the shield is a maple leaf in autumn tints, and a superimposed crown, symbolic of the monarchy, the binding link of the Commonwealth. On the red field, symmetrically placed, are nine lesser maple leaves in green, each signifying a province of the Dominion.

IF THIS BE PROGRESS

Commenting on the result of the B.C. election, Premier Aberhart is quoted as saying that he could not see why that province had not supported social credit, and that the reason there was social credit in Alberta was because the people are more progressive here.

"More progressive" is scarcely the term that is applied to this province by outside observers or by those within the province who have been obliged to carry on business under the eccentricities of the present government. If this be progress, how greatly are the reactionary governments of the other provinces to be preferred! For instance a good reactionary government that reduces taxation, builds roads, extends health facilities, maintains educational and hospital grants, and attends consistently to the material interests of its people.

Possibly if B.C. had had an election fourteen months ago, a few Social Crediters might have been elected, or at any rate have made a fairly good run. But every month operation of the Alberta government has been a terrible example to the unprejudiced onlooker. Particularly within the last few months has the government presented a spectacle of disharmony and unfitness that has made the province an object of ridicule. To those released from the hypnotic spell of Sabbath political diatribe, faith cannot continue without some measure of good works.

Alberta has perhaps plumed itself too greatly on 'being progressive. Some of the "so-called" progressive legislation of the past has proved a costly mistake, but none of those minor errors of judgment has ever assumed the proportions of the current disaster. There is nothing progressive about a government that talks incessantly, quarrels amongst its members, clamps on heavier taxation, enacts extraordinary measures which it withdraws or decides not to enforce, dismisses experienced civil servants, promises projects which it does not attempt to carry out—and fails completely in the plan for which it was elected almost two years ago. Surely those electors who shut their eyes to this lamentable record are lacking in the very essence of progressiveness—the open mind which is capable of recognizing a mistake and abandons it.

The Aberhart government has stamped its failure upon the roads, upon the people who have left the province, upon the withdrawal of capital to other provinces. British Columbia has very plainly said: "If this be progress, if this be the price of venturing where no man has ever before trod, we want none of it."

Evidences of progress are not provided by proclamations from the pulpit or from political leaders. They show up in a happy people. Albertans are not happy people. They are farther from security, assured livelihood, work for all and a contented mental state than they were two years ago. This is in contrast to the other reactionary provinces... of the Dominion.—High River Times.

BETTER ROADS ADVOCATED AT GRIT CONVENTION

A direct bid for farmers' support was made at the convention of the Liberal party in Calgary recently when the party declared its intention to provide better highways throughout the province if elected to power.

Delegates attended the convention from all parts of the province, many of them from the far northern constituencies, and they told the convention that farmers throughout the province are beginning to realize that they are losing millions of dollars every year because American motor tourists will not come to this province in large numbers with highways in their present condition. A similar stand has been taken by the Alberta Motor Association.

Several delegates speaking on the highway problem voiced the view, which was adopted by the convention as a whole, that gasoline taxes should be earmarked for highway construction and maintenance and that this money should be used to hard surface (runk) highways and improve market roads at the earliest possible opportunity. It was pointed out that, through the gasoline tax, those who use the highways must pay the most toward the establishment and maintenance of the highways. To this end it was the intention of the Liberal delegates that, as improved highways induced greater travel and consequently larger revenues from gasoline taxes, automobile license fees might be considerably reduced.

In fact, some delegates held the view that the license fee should be a nominal charge only to cover the cost of registration. Lower license fees, it was pointed out, would effect a considerable saving to Alberta motorists, and would place a more equitable burden for the upkeep of the highways where it belonged, namely upon the shoulders of tourists and others using commercial cars who would make their contribution to highway costs in the regular way through the gasoline tax.

Canada presented to Wyoming, Montana and Colorado what is referred to as a "million-dollar storm" over the week-end. A large wedge of cold air moved southward, sent the mercury dropping, and snow commenced to fall. Farmers and cattlemen were jubilant, though their joy in some cases was tempered by worry over threatened losses to newly-sheared sheep in the mountain grazing lands. AN IMPROPER METHOD

(The Hanna Herald)
Blanket debt legislation is ill-advised, unfair and harmful. Alberta people need expect no permanent advantage from such laws. On the contrary they will do irreparable harm. Most people are honest. The great majority of debtors want to pay. Alberta people are not the chiselers and defaulters that they now appear to be before the eyes of Canada and of the world.

There are a considerable number of Alberta farmers, however, who simply cannot meet their mortgage obligations. Bad crops and low prices over half a dozen years have robbed them of their earning power. These people must have special consideration. The way Manitoba and Saskatchewan tackled the problem of farm mortgage indebtedness was reasonable and sensible. First they got the interest rate cut to six per cent, which is where it should be. Then they arranged with the lending institutions for adjustments in instances where arrears of interest had accumulated. This eased the debtor's mortgage from the role of those in arrears and gave Let us forget this South American idea of default and blanket debt legislation. Such a move is a step in progressive human degeneration.

In Saskatchewan alone fifteen million dollars were written off mortgage indebtedness through common-sense co-operation, and a comparative amount was relieved from debtor's backs in Manitoba.

In Alberta today no debtor knows for sure whether he has been relieved of a cent of accumulated indebtedness. Blanket debt legislation has been a curse rather than a blessing. A man who can't pay should pay. A man who can't pay should be aided. Blanket debt legislation does not work that way. A plan of compromise and adjustment does work that way.

Alberta is not completely down and out—sunk for all time. This province can and will come back. The time will come when our farmers will again require credit. That is something our people should never forget.

So let us handle the present problem of debts in a reasonable, sensible and decent manner. Let us follow sound British tradition and example. Let us forget this South American idea of default and blanket debt legislation. Such a move is a step in progressive human degeneration.

let him speak up.—Drumheller Review.

A parrot lived in the bar of an inn, and was accustomed to note the rush of business every Saturday night. One Saturday it left its cage to explore the neighborhood, and was eventually found in a field surrounded by crows, who were busily engaged in depriving it of its feathers. When the rescue party arrived, the parrot was heard ejaculating: "One at a time, gentlemen, if you please; One at a time; you'll all be served!"

Drumheller city council decided that Mrs. Louise Lefebvre, widow of the late Harry Lefebvre, who lost his life at the Vickers store fire, will be allowed to purchase the house in which she and the family are living for the nominal sum of one dollar. The balance on the lease option, made out between the city and her late husband, will be cancelled by the city. This commendable action on the part of the Drumheller council is a practical appreciation of the heroic service which members of the fire brigade are called upon to render.

District News

From Our Own Correspondents

COWLEY HAPPENINGS

During the past two weeks five inches of rain has fallen over the Cowley district. This blessing brings a renewed hope to the people here, who have suffered drought and crop failures for the past three years. Our pasture lands are now green and fresh, and our fields are looking prosperous. A good average crop should be harvested here this fall, judging from present prospects.

Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Murphy, of Galloway, B.C., paid a visit to Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Murphy and family on Thursday of this week.

The Ladies' Aid of the United church held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Jessie Snyder on Thursday afternoon. This order is gathering a bundle of clothing, etc., to donate to charities.

The old-timers' dance in the Lundbreck hall on Friday night last was a huge success. Despite rough country roads and lowering skies, there was an attendance of around three hundred. During the early part of the evening, song sheets were passed around, and between dances the crowd joined as they blended their voices in heartily singing old-time favorites. C. W. Tayson and A. B. McMurdo, the two popular Pincher Creek entertainers, gave a couple of sketches that brought the house down, after which a halt was called, when at the hour of midnight a delicious supper was served. Next in order was the awarding of prizes as follows: W. T. Eddy, who came to the district in 1881 from Ontario; oldest lady old-timer, Mrs. George Porter, who came to Alberta in 1895, and for the oldest couple present, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Simister, who were joined in wedlock 54 years ago, graciously rising now to receive their gift. Following this, dancing in fancy costume, Miss Clara Bundy did the sword dance, the "Ball or's Hornpipe" and the "Highland Fling." Messrs. Tayson and McMurdo again appeared and brought roars of laughter from the crowd with another couple of their humorous hits, and most refreshing was a fancy step dance by silver-headed Pete Scotte, which was tripped off by the old gentleman with the lightness of youth. On this occasion, many hoary heads in the winter of life were renewing their youthful days as they tripped the fantastic toe in a number of old-time dances, including the old square dances, polkas, schottisches, minuets, jersey, call of the pipes, old English waltzes, etc. The dance concluded with again joining in singing old favorites, ending with "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the King."

Mrs. Hector Landry, of Lumberton, B.C., is paying a visit to her daughter, Mrs. James Clinton, here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Smyth have returned from a motor trip with friends to Hanna.

A GOLFING PARODY

"I think that I shall never see a hazard rougher than a tree—a tree o'er which my ball must fly if on the green it is to lie; a tree which stands that green to guard, and makes the shot extremely hard; a tree whose leafy arms extend to kill the mashie shot I send; a tree that stands in silence there, while angry golfers rave and swear, Niblicks were made for fools like me, who cannot even miss a tree."

Mesdames E. Cole, W. Hampson and J. The first part of the evening was spent in whist, prizes being awarded to Mrs. T. Smith, first; Miss A. Boguish, second. The door prize was won by the honor guest, Miss Rosia. Following the serving of a dainty luncheon, Miss Joan Hampson and Master Lawrence Rosia, dressed as bride and groom, drew in a large wagon, piled high with gifts. The honor guest was recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts.

Little Miss May Bowker, of Lethbridge, is guest for a few days of Misses Elaine and DeLores McLean.

GOVERNMENT ADVERTISING

The hearts of Ontario weeklies have doubtless been made glad by a full page statement from the government setting out the financial position of the province, in considerable detail. This is a service to the taxpayers of the province, and an expenditure which is justified from every angle. The advertising has no connection with government support, and is carried by papers which frankly oppose the administration. But the newspaper is rightly regarded as the proper medium through which such a statement can be presented to the electorate. It is an obligation of the government to publicize its record as widely as possible, and this can best be done through the printed form of the press. British Columbia followed the same policy, in order to inform the people.—Ex.

George H. Van Allen, Liberal member of the Alberta legislature, succumbed to a long illness in the Mayo hospital at Rochester on Tuesday. The remains will be laid to rest in Edmonton. Mr. Van Allen's wife, formerly Miss Duxie McMillan, of Cowley, predeceased him quite a number of years ago.

On Friday evening last, Rev. Dr. Peter Bryce, of Toronto, moderator of the United Church of Canada, occupied the pulpit of the United church at Curling, Newfoundland. This pulpit happened to be his first on this side of the Atlantic some thirty-odd years ago, and he was still welcomed by old familiar faces. On Saturday, he visited as many as possible of the old parishioners there, and was later tendered a banquet at the Glynmill Inn at Corner Brook. On Sunday, Dr. Bryce officiated at services in the Corner Brook United church. This week Dr. Bryce is attending the annual conference of the United Church at St. John's, Newfoundland.

R. G. McNEILLIE PROMOTED

R. G. McNeillie, at present assistant passenger traffic manager, is to succeed C. B. Foster, as passenger manager of the C.P.R. at Montreal. Mr. Foster retires.

Mr. McNeillie first joined the company as a stenographer at Winnipeg in October of 1901. He became a chief clerk in the passenger department at that point in September, 1906, and subsequent promotions took him to Nelson, B.C., in October, 1909, as district passenger agent, and to Calgary in a similar capacity in April, 1910. Three years later, in July, 1913, Mr. McNeillie was promoted to the post of assistant general passenger agent at Winnipeg, and became general passenger agent at that centre in September, 1926. He became assistant passenger traffic manager at Montreal in May, 1930, and was promoted to his new position after seven years in that capacity.

In connection with the Edmonton Exhibition, July 12 to 17, tickets will be sold from all stations in the three western provinces from July 11 to 16, and on the 17th for trains arriving in Edmonton not later than 2 p.m., and be good to return leaving Edmonton not later than midnight of July 20th.

TAXES $1.42 FOR EACH DOLLAR IN DIVIDENDS

Industry in the United States pays 34 cents in taxes for every dollar it expends on pay rolls, the National Association of Manufacturers reported a few weeks ago.

Association officials declared the figures were based on a survey of conditions in 694 companies representing 25 leading industries. For each dollar paid in dividends, the taxes paid were $1.42.

As was already known, the oil industry was the leading contributor to the treasuries of the tax jurisdiction. Its taxes were 26 per cent of its sales.

Public utilities, according to the report, paid in taxes 59 per cent of pay-rolls, $1.028 per employee, 16 per cent of sales and $1 per share of their common stock.

Here's Arthur's latest fish story! When the turbulent waters of the Crow's Nest river were at their highest and terribly murky, many fish were seen trying to emerge therefrom. One giant fish was so eager to get out for a breath of fresh air that it actually stood on its tail on the surface of the stream, and travelling eastward at a rate estimated at ten miles per hour was doing well till a footbridge was approached. Its head hit the bridge with such force that the fish was killed instantly. Picked up later in the Frank lake, it was found that the fish's tail had become worn as flat as a chair top from performing these riding stunts.

LITTLE SAVINGS...
FINANCE
MORTGAGE LOANS

TENS of thousands of Canadian farms and homes benefit from first mortgage loans made possible by the accumulated savings of Life Insurance policyholders.

For every borrower, there are six thrifty people who supply the necessary funds.

This fact affords a striking illustration of the "double duty" performed by Life Insurance dollars. Not only do they ensure financial security for the men, women and children of Canada, but they also help to build and finance their farms and homes.

Life Insurance companies exercise the greatest care in the selection of properties upon which mortgage loans are made. To safeguard the savings of policyholders, security of principal and interest is and must always be the first consideration.

Mingling Of Races

Lord Tweedmuir Says Strongest People Are Of Mixed Blood. There was "uncommon lot of nonsense being talked about races" in Europe, Lord Tweedmuir declared in an address before Halifax professional and business men.

"The strongest peoples have always been a mingling of races," Lord Tweedmuir declared, "but they are only strong if that mingling is conducted in the proper way. And that proper way is that each appreciates the qualities of the other, that each learns from the other, and that while they cherish their own special loyalties and tradition which springs from their union."

Famous Musician Visits West

Sir Ernest MacMillan, Of Toronto Conservatory Of Music, To Fill Many Engagements

Sir Ernest MacMillan, principal of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, will arrive in Vancouver from Calgary this week, to conduct the musical examinations of Vancouver and West Westminster music students.

During his Western trip Sir Ernest will visit Winnipeg, Calgary, Victoria, Edmonton, Saskatoon and Regina. In each city, meetings are being arranged for musical discussions and a number of social functions will be held.

Following Sir Ernest's trip he will go to Chicago, where he has been invited as guest conductor of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra for July 2, 3 and 4. The summer programs of the Chicago Symphony are held in the open air at the famous Ravinia Park, under the direction of Frederick Stock, noted conductor.

Jose Iturbi, famous pianist, will play a concerto at each of the concerts under Sir Ernest's baton.

The Chicago engagement unfortunately prevents Sir Ernest's conducting the London Symphony Orchestra, in London, on July 8, since he will be unable to sail for England before July 6.

Sir Ernest has accepted an invitation to adjudicate at the Royal National Birtedford (Machynlleth, Wales) from August 2 to 7, a high honor not often accorded to a musician outside the British Isles. Dating back over two thousand years for its origin, this great national music festival is the oldest in the world.

In addition to adjudicating at the Welsh festival, it is expected that Sir Ernest will conduct several musical broadcasts for the British Broadcasting Corporation.

New Zealand's Premier

No Red Tape Connected With Office Of Michael Savage

Another bachelor Dominion Prime Minister is Michael Savage, of New Zealand. Stockily built and 44 years of age, there is no elaboration, no red tape about Mr. Savage. If you want to see him you will not find him surrounded by an entourage of secretaries. Quite possibly, his door will be open and you will just walk in.

This quiet, cautiously-spoken, studious little man, who has made finance and economy his special study, served in a country store, did irrigation work, and had a spell as a miner before active participation in trade union affairs brought him into public life, the crown of which came two years ago when he became Prime Minister of New Zealand. The first act of his Government was to give $100,000 as a Christmas present to the unemployed. Then he originated a salary-sharing plan among his ministers under which his own salary was reduced to $800 a year plus $200 for entertainment expenses, which so far he has not drawn.

When Mr. Savage arrived in New Zealand he only had a few pennies in his pocket. There is wisdom as well as benevolence in his dark eyes. —Overseas Daily Mail.

A Study Of Importance

Nutrition Plays Big Part In Promoting Health And Preventing Disease

Although a recent introduction to public health service, nutrition's role is already important. Prof. Grant A. Fleming, Dean of Medicine at McGill University, told delegates who were in Montreal for the second annual convention of the Canadian Dietetic Association.

Addressing the gathering on "The part the dietitian plays in public health," Prof. Fleming said nutrition plays an important part in the prevention of disease and promotion of health—two main functions of public health services. Efficient public health service can postpone fully one-third of all deaths, he said.

"Mental and physical health are so closely bound together as to be inseparable, and both of them are essential to economic welfare. Physical health can be promoted by the dietitian by dissemination of information on use of food for health's sake. Advantages of a balanced diet, and properly prepared food are obvious, but it is the dietitian's duty to spread that knowledge."

Isolation Is Impossible

It is as hard for a nation to be truly isolated the world-to-day as it is for a man to be a hermit at Forty-second and Broadway states the New York Post. The fact that a man named Adolf Hitler took power in Germany and started an armaments race may affect the business of a real estate man and builder in Queens and the plans of a low-cost housing enthusiast in slum areas.

Human eyes are called upon for more severe visual tasks to-day than ever before, due to the increased use of mechanical equipment and to increased speed.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JOSEPH'S KINDNESS TO HIS KINRED

Golden text: Be ye kind one to another, tender hearted, forgiving each other, even as God also in Christ forgave you. Ephesians 4:32. Lesson: Genesis 45:16-50:26. Devotional reading: Luke 22:41-52.

Explanations And Comments

Jacob Consents to Migrate to Egypt, Genesis 45:16-28. Report of Joseph's brethren was brought to Pharaoh, and the latter bade Joseph send wagons to Canaan to bring back his father and all his family. "I will give you the good of the land of Egypt, and ye shall eat the fat of the land," Pharaoh promised them. "Regard not your stuff; for the good of all the land of Egypt is yours."

Laden with presents—changes of raiment and silver and other gifts—the eleven brothers returned to Jacob. "Joseph is yet alive, and he is ruler over all the land of Egypt," was the astounding news that he brought him. No wonder Jacob could not believe them till he saw the wagons which Joseph had sent to transport him to his household. "It is enough," cried the aged man; "Joseph my son is yet alive: I will go and see him before I die."

Jacob and His Family Go to Goshen, Genesis 46:1-7. At last all were ready for the journey. Jacob and his sons and their households, their cattle and their goods. The caravan halted at Beersheba, the last city of Canaan on the border of the dead waste that lay between Canaan and Egypt, and there Jacob offered sacrifices "to the God of his father Isaac." In a vision at night he received God's assurance that the journey to Egypt was for the best, and the repeated promise that God would be with him and that his descendants should become a great nation. "And when you die, Joseph shall bury you; and I will take you to be buried: ye shall not come up into Egypt." (Moffatt's translation).

The Meeting between Jacob and Joseph, Genesis 46:28-34. On reaching Goshen they were met by Joseph. Like a king Joseph had sent to his father, but like a son he received him, embracing him and weeping with joy.

Joseph Presents Jacob to Pharaoh; the Israelites Settled in Goshen, Genesis 47:1-26. Joseph took him to the royal city and apprised Pharaoh of the coming of his family. Five days were then given for the brethren to be presented to Pharaoh and were formally given a dwelling place in the land of Goshen, the best of the land. Rabbi Herbert S. Goldstein observes that when Joseph asked his brethren to live in Goshen, the dwelling place he created the first ghetto and gave the children of Israel the idea of carrying out the tenets of their faith undisturbed.

Joseph's Last Days, Genesis 50:1-26. For 33 years younger Joseph stood as an elder brother to the Israelites. He died at the age of one hundred and ten, full of years and honor. His body was embalmed to await the coming of his brethren when they returned to dwell in the Promised Land.

Had Many Adventures

Winnipeg Man Was Animal Trapper, Soldier, And Cowboy

Charles Campbell, covered the world and adventured in strange lands before settling down to quiet life in Winnipeg 31 years ago. Now he is 85 years of age and expects to round out a century.

He ran sheep from his Herford, England, home at the age of 16 and went to the United States. On a Wyoming ranch he pursued and killed cattle rustlers and for a time worked in Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show.

In 1870 he enlisted with the French in the Franco-Prussian war, was captured by the Germans and taken to Berlin. There he met Carl Hagenbein, wild animal trainer, who commissioned him a few years later to trap wild animals for his circus in South Africa.

He joined the Australian gold rush, fought in the South African war and was stabbed by a Chinaman in South America.

Malaria caused his physician to order him to live in Manitoba in 1906. He speculated in real estate and made and lost a fortune.

Marking Live Stock

The Farmer's Advocate says some men cannot identify their own live stock when it is in the stable let alone after it has been five or six months pasturing on the back fifty or on some rented pasture. The tag put in the ears of tested cattle by the Health of Animals Branch has helped to identify animals on many occasions. The born stockman knows every individual and its breeding whether it is tagged or not.

THE CANADIAN ADVENTURE TRIP OF BOB SIM, AN ONTARIO FARM BOY

No. 2 of a Series of 16 Letters

Bob visits Montreal—attends Canadian Youth Congress—meets with the policeman on Parliament Hill, Ottawa. Where will he be next? Will the river hold out? He's only a boy and sees things through young eyes—perhaps he'll give you new ideas!

Parliament Hill, Ottawa, Ontario. (Special Dispatch by Bob Sim).—I am writing from a park bench on Parliament Hill. Deep down in the valley pour the angry waters of the Ottawa river; behind me are the massive buildings of the capital. Inside the Gothic doorway of the Parliament Buildings stood three huge policemen. They had obviously nothing to do, and were exhausted with idleness. They all yawned copiously when I asked them to move to the House. At Ottawa one looks for political grafters and provincial shysters, but the Hill is as guileless as an archbishop, and as stately as a cathedral. I have seen a suspicious character; they all must be at the Corporation. The House, of course, is not in session, so I went in and sat in the speaker's chair, and stood behind the prime minister's desk. I also tried the chair of state given to me by Miss Agnes Macphail. It is very comfortable.

We left Toronto at five in the afternoon; it is 360 miles to Montreal, so we were driving most of the night on city lights and traffic. Toronto and Montreal are Canada's biggest cities. Farmers often imagine that people who live in these cities are superior individuals. But I am beginning to doubt it. Two of the Toronto people who travelled with me to Montreal had never been east of Ontario; Hamilton was the only city they knew of before. I found one who knew how to get out of the place. From Ottawa to Montreal is 126 miles on one paved way.

Canadian Youth Congress

I attended the second annual Canadian Youth Congress at Montreal. Delegates to the congress, almost all of them from the United States and organizations across Canada. They held all shades of opinion; Protestant and Catholic, Conservative and Socialist; French speaking and English speaking. I wish those who think that the youth of Canada could have been there to see how earnestly this great assembly faced the problems of the future. Many of those who think the congress Communitarian should have seen the demonstration of enthusiasm and the resolutions were passed overwhelmingly affirming belief in God and the right of the individual to private property. Due largely to the resolutions of last year's congress the federal government has agreed to give one million dollars for the rehabilitation of youth. I wish there were more of these discussions about how it should be spent. Although half of Canadian youth is under the age of 20, most were from farms. Two of these were from Ontario, one from Alberta, and one from Quebec. I wish that such a miserable representation were farmers cannot expect to receive fair treatment when this money is distributed.

It was depressing to hear of farm-land being sold to private parties. I saw these stories for my letters written from Western Canada. It was still more depressing to realize that six provinces had no farm representation at the congress.

Where Now? It was depressing to hear of farm-land being sold to private parties. I saw these stories for my letters written from Western Canada. It was still more depressing to realize that six provinces had no farm representation at the congress.

Farming In The Ottawa Valley "Wetlands of the Ottawa Valley." This was the greeting I received at the farm home of the McCulloughs, who live about 20 miles from Ottawa. The valley was settled largely by the Irish in the early days, to such an extent that the most vibrant brogue is now known as the Ottawa Valley accent. Around Ottawa the soil is rich and black, devoted largely to gardening; farther out it is lighter, and dairying is the staple industry. Montreal used to take most of the milk in this area but this has been replaced by cheese-making.

Where Now? It was depressing to hear of farm-land being sold to private parties. I saw these stories for my letters written from Western Canada. It was still more depressing to realize that six provinces had no farm representation at the congress.

Last week you remember, I promised to write this letter from Quebec city—so this time I make no promise, except to say I'll be writing from Eastern Canada.

Indicates Land Near Pole

Russian Expedition Reports Seeing Bird Fly Over Camp

The Soviet North pole expedition announced it had found bird life close to the pole and that this had led its scientists to discuss the possibility that undiscovered land exists in the polar sea.

Members of Dr. Otto J. Schmidt's party maintaining a 24-hour watch at their outpost near the earth's axis reported sighting a guillemot, a black and white sea bird which abounds on north Atlantic coasts, flying over the camp.

A Moscow zoologist said the presence of birds usually indicates proximity to land, which is not known to exist in the vicinity of the pole.

Dueling still takes place in most German universities, although forbidden by law.

THE YELLOW BRIAR

A Story of the Irish on the Canadian Countryside

By PATRICK SLATER

By arrangement with Thomas Allen, Publisher, Toronto.

By the dawning, the mourners felt cold and stiff, after spending the night seeing Jimmie through the first heel of his long journey; and they were not wishing to burn up much daylight over the dead body of a man who had been called out of the way into glory. As a final mark of respect, bright and early in the morning the coffin was hoisted on the stout shoulders of the men, who, changing off as the miles slowly went by, bore it at long last, and by the longest route, to its grave up the steep bourn at Centerville. "Most willingly did the whole countryside augment the tolls of their tired bodies by trailing and straggling after the bier, wailing and chanting their griefs.

During the wake, a tall young girl had sung us a keen of the Croppy Boy in the time of The Troubles, which brought tears to every eye. The deep hood of her dark-blue cloth cloak flung back on her shoulders bared the raven-black hair of a Munster peasant girl. She sobbed the boy's farewell to his old mother as he told her:

"At the siege of Ross did my father fall.
At Gortree, my loving brothers all,
I'm going to Westford to take their place
To free my nation and my race."

Then, soft and low, she followed the tramp of his brogues to the church to make his confession to the holy father. The tune seemed to take the natural gait of its subject:

The boy, he entered the empty hall,
What a dismal sound makes his light fall!
Sat a silent chamber, dull and bare,
Sat a wailing priest in a lonely chair.
The youth, he knelt to tell his sins,
At Confiteor Deo, the youth begins,
At Mass Cuius he struck his breast,
In broken murmurs, he tells the rest.
"I have no hatred against living things,
I love my country above my king.
So bless me, father, and let me go
To die if God has ordained it so."
The priest said naught—
With sparkling eye, the youth looked up.
The robes fell off, and in scarlet leered
Sat a yeoman captain in a fiery glare.

Her voice rose in a wail as the keener toll of the heavy-bodied soldiers dragging the youth from the altar to be hanged and quartered.

A dirge like that was as a tuning fork in my youth to strike the true note of Irish feeling. In the heart of every Celt whose bare feet were trod on Irish soil there was a hatred of English rule—not of England herself, mark you, nor of the English people—but a black-hearted hatred of English rule in Ireland so blazing hot that it scalded the blood stream. The causes of Ireland's bitterness and woes may be arguable, of course; but not with any profit by men of Irish blood whose emotions have been aroused. Nothing then, to the English makes it so. (Holy, jumping, suffering cats!)—old John Trueman would say to that. In my boyhood days, every emigrant ship brought to Canada the seeds of poisonous.

ancient strife; and it is the merciful providence of God that such wickedness and bigotry failed to thrive long in the sweet, virgin soil of the most tolerant country in the world. But in their short day they made an ineffaceable impression on the pioneer life of the Ontario countryside.

Revolt was endemic in Ireland throughout the last century, and English rule was maintained in the island by the constabulary and the military—aided by the ascendant, farinaceous tuber. The police and the garrisons cowed the spirit of the populace, and an ill-balanced diet of potato weakened the resisting power of the Irish Celt.

Yet in view of the large Celtic Irish migration into British America in those days, it must be apparent to everyone that Canada could not have survived as a British kingdom had it not been for the sincere loyalty that grew up in Irish Catholic hearts toward the struggling young country and her English queen. The truth is man is capable of a divided allegiance. He can be an Irish rebel and at the same time a loyal Canadian subject of the king. As with the saddle-bags of the Methodist circuit rider, there may be two separate compartments to the heart. In Canada, and as a Canadian, Paddy Slater never found any trouble loving both his country and his king; because in Canada, the crown stands for nothing less than the decent and respectable public life of a kindly-minded and democratic people.

Of course, it was old Victoria Regina that brought this mystery to pass. For sixty odd years the great queen reigned as truly a goddess in the minds of the small children along the St. Lawrence. Her great feeding lakes as had the divine Mother, in old time, in the minds of the Egyptians of the Upper and Lower Nile. Regina was all powerful, and she dwelt remote in a golden should. The queen stood for every possible sort of goodness. The children prayed for her, and in diverse ways we prayed to her. Her face may not have launched a thousand ships, but it was the face of every child a youngster clutched in his gummy fist; and in her name, and for her honor, generations of Canadian children had a glorious holiday that ushered in the most beautiful season in the Canadian year. Her transcendent virtues may have been a myth, but as true as God's word, they firmly established a great kingdom. In America, which circumstance, as you'll admit, is one of the wonders of the world. Young folk nowadays read mappy things of the old queen, but old men and women will feel what I am trying to say!

So it happened that for years Paddy Slater was a stout tory in Canada, and in the man's day, a great supporter was I of Old John A. (Rt. Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, leader of the Conservative Party and Prime Minister of Canada, 1878-1891). Yet I found on several occasions that my loyal sentiments would not stand a sea voyage. No sooner did Paddy's feet feel the cobbles of Dublin and the cry of earlier herring strike his ears, than the heart of the man gave a leap like a goat, and he became an Irish patriot and rebel again. Boise yuh, ma vourne! "Sin go right" (I vary to my darling, Ireland for ever!) Putting a conquered people to the sword—as the Jewish Jehovah sometimes directed—would have been a deal more kindly than crowding dispossessed peasants into rought ground, the Corn Laws or obliging an entire subject race to live through centuries in the dire misery and carking poverty of the mud tenants folk of Ireland. The pig, the barley, the butter and the poultry went to the towns and to England to pay the rent; whilst the Irish tenant lived on potatoes and a drop of the buttermilk. Even the drop of the great famine saw a heavy export of food products from Ireland. To the great mass of the inhabitants, the British crown was always stood in Ireland for misrule and oppression.

Ireland has made an unhappy front-shop window display of British rule. However, let us thank heaven the arrogant Irish Celt has never had a chance to found an empire for himself—and disgrace us all entirely.

CHAPTER VII.

How times change! Nowadays, it is a fat Methodist who comes with a motor hearse to take our bodies to the graveyard; and if the dead Catholic is an elderly man, among the pallbearers you will notice one or two Orangemen looking a trifle awkward. With a sharp eye to business, that undertaker-man sends me a fresh calendar every New Year's; and he has the politeness to mark each day with the picture of a little fish.

At Martin Kelly's, every day was a fish day for me. In the spring spawning season, he had bought him a wagon-box full of fish in the sucker run; but the salt had been a trifle late in coming for the curing. Even with a tasty bowl of boiled potatoes sitting beside it with their great brown coats on, let me explain that a piece of soggy bone-kelly sucker makes a mean principal meal for the day. Not that Martin Kelly and his wife themselves ate much of the rotten fish. In those days, no matter how humble the Irish Catholic home, hired help and such like always ate at a separate table.

But at that, I made shift to get along—'t food that was better, perhaps, than Martin himself had eaten as a lad. In the morning, I had my macquashier (porridge cake); at the noon hour, came the boiled fish and potatoes; and for supper, I had some strabrou with a bowl of buttermilk. Fast days, however, were an extra trouble to me about the Kelly place. There was no clock or watch to tell the time; and, during the day, Martin, for that purpose, considered the place of the sun in the heavens. Before I sat down to eat on a fast day, the man's scruples for my conscience required that I point out to him a star in the heavens as evidence that night had actually come. Did you ever notice that stars have a way of shaking in the sky?

I would probably have stayed on at the Kelly place, and grown up to cobbles shoes through life, like other great thinkers, had it not been for the wicked disposition of the O'Leary heifer. At an evening milking, the young cow was cross and uneasy because of an injured quarter. Perhaps I was a little rough in stripping her; at any rate, she measured her distances accurately and by stealth, and then she hit me a wicked kick in the pit of my stomach; a vicious pucker it was, that knocked the wind clean out of me, and sent the milk pail flying. As I lay gasping for breath, Mrs. Kelly let a scream out of her at the loss of the good milk; and Martin promptly hauled me into the house by my lug to attend to my requirements. I was given a sound beating; and that night I went to bed without my strabrou.

It was in the full of the moon; and an empty stomach helps to rake up annoyance. No wonder, then, I was wrinkled, cynical face that leers in through windows in the quiet watches of the night. The man in the moon knows all about the joys and sorrows of the human kind. It is during his hours for riding the heavens that their young are born; and the silly creatures also do their love making in the pale moonlight. In the hour before the dawning, our worn bodies suffer and our souls depart. The moon listens to the cries of the afflicted; and, like a ghostly father, hears the confessions of our tortured souls. And the bitterest of human heartaches, the moon man can tell you are caused by the cruelty and injustice of those in authority.

Why, I asked him, should a lad be beaten because a cow kicked over the milk pail? I put a listening ear on myself and waited till the quietness dawned below was disturbed by Martin snoring fine and easy. No answer being forthcoming to my question, I tied my few things together with a cord, and dropped them through the window. I might have been riding on eggs so gentle was my tread. I followed—after them, and 'slipped away up the 3rd line, to let Martin Kelly beat his old man and boiler his wife in the morning. In the dim of my long journey, I was scared for awhile because I saw a man walking ahead of me; but I discovered at last it was only my shadow the full moon cast before me on that turning of the road.

At cock-crowing time, William Marshall found me sitting on the wash bench at his back kitchen door.

"I have run away, I have, Mr. Marshall," I told him, "because the man beat me for the cow kicking the pail over." And I showed him the swollen whelms on my back.

"It's heart scared I am to be troubling you, sir; but if you'll let me stay with you, Mr. Marshall," I pleaded with him, "I'll be a good Catholic boy, and I'll work hard for you."

"Don't worry, Patrick, we'll see about that," he told me in a kindly tone.

"Oh! Mr. Marshall," I cried, crossing myself, "if you only'll keep me, naught will I ever do to hurt you!"

At breakfast time, Mr. Marshall and his wife were having a quiet talk on the side. Oh! ma, Oh! my, these dainty, well-battered slippers sound in maple syrup!

"Indeed!" said Mrs. Marshall, in a louder tone, "it is not in our house we'll ever begrudge a child the bite of bread he'll be eating."

"You'll be a good boy, won't you, Paddy?" she asked me pleasantly, "and you can be doing the chores at the school for Mr. Michael Hughes, and you might rid up this dirty cabin."

The tongue on that woman did be so soft and sweet that she did be drawing the secrets of the world out of men and little children.

Importance Of The Rocket

Lindbergh Says Value Of Its Use Cannot Be Estimated

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh predicts commerce "must look to the rocket if we hope to attain speeds of transport above a few hundred miles an hour."

In a letter to President Wallace W. Atwood, of Clark University, Worcester, Mass., read at Clark's commencement exercises, the aviator-scientist said rocket experiments by Professor Robert H. Goddard of Clark might lead "a rocket enthusiast" to predict "in an unguarded moment . . . that we will eventually travel at speeds governed only by the acceleration which the human body can stand."

Lindbergh's letter, written in England, said that "from the standpoint of science the rocket offers the only known possibility of sending instruments to altitudes above those reached by sounding balloons. Observations taken outside of the earth's atmosphere, or even in the higher levels of the atmosphere, would be of immense value in the study of such subjects as astronomy, meteorology and terrestrial magnetism."

He also said that "from the standpoint of war we must consider the fact that rockets may carry explosives faster than the airplane and farther than the projectile."

Earlier Professor Goddard explained he and his aides had solved a knotty problem of parachute construction to permit bringing the rocket and its delicate instruments down gently.

He said a gyroscope had solved stabilization problems and the new task ahead was to streamline and lighten the projectile to permit its use to carry instruments and a radio transmitter.

Colonel Lindbergh's letter declared:

"The importance of the rocket lies in the effect it may have on science, on commerce and on war. A discovery that would enable us to reach various fields might well be likened to an attempt to prophesy the future of the airplane at the time of Langley. The problems are somewhat similar and the possibilities are great."

The King Of Denmark

Has Very Simple Habits And Tastes Are Democratic

King Christian of Denmark, who celebrated the silver jubilee of his reign the other day, is a nephew of the late Queen Alexandra and a brother of King Haakon of Norway.

Countless stories are told about his simple habits and democratic tastes, and most of them are true.

When a republican movement was started in Denmark after the war it fell through because everybody agreed that the King was the only possible president.

When two Socialists ostentatiously stuck their hands in their pockets as he passed he went up to them with a smile, held out his hand, and said: "Allow me to introduce myself, gentlemen. My name is Christian the Tenth."

He walks and rides about Copenhagen daily like any other citizen, and takes his bicycle with him when he goes to the Riviera. He is an expert yachtsman and shot, and has been known to speak five languages within five minutes.—News of the World.

Can Be Avoided

Centenarian Believes Worry Is Greatest Enemy To Health

George Larabee, cousin of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, celebrated his 100th birthday at Victoria, B.C., in May, and advised those who would reach a ripe old age to get up early and work hard.

He was born just outside Montreal, May 5, 1837, when William IV. was on England's throne and has lived under six British sovereigns.

There is scarcely a wrinkle in his clear skin, his hearing is excellent, but his eyesight is dimming. "It really does not matter," he told a reporter, "for I was never good at reading. I can still see well enough to chop wood and go walking."

"Get up early and work," he advised and added that he slept only five or six hours at night and never took a nap in the afternoon, but it interfered with his regular sleep.

The greatest menace to health, Mr. Larabee believes, is worry. It was a hard thing to avoid, but a serene mind could be cultivated:

A prominent airplane-maker says that airplanes will never be very much cheaper. But parachutes, sooner or later, are sure to come down.

Infantile Paralysis

New Serum To Prevent Crippling Of Children Is Being Developed

An effective serum to prevent the crippling of children and adults suffering from infantile paralysis is being developed, a Rochester, Minn., physician said, as the result of a discovery the disease is caused by the common streptococcus bacteria which changes its form and becomes a filterable virus.

Such a serum, which will prevent paralysis in victims of the disease, it is given promptly, already has proven effective in experiments on monkeys and on a few human beings during epidemics. Dr. Charles E. Rosenow of the Mayo clinic declared in presenting an exhibit of his work before the opening meeting of the American Medical Association.

Studies of epidemics have shown that can be traced to milk or water supplies, he added. In one instance of a mid-western city of 2,500,000 people where 700 cases of infantile paralysis were found the streptococcus bacteria was found in the drinking water and when injected into experimental animals produced the disease in them.

"I believe that we can now prove without any reasonable doubt that infantile paralysis and encephalitis, a brain infection, are primarily streptococcus diseases and that as the streptococcus infection proceeds a virus phase of its developments appears. In every case the presence of the streptococcus can be shown if it is caught at the proper stage of this change and studied under the proper procedure," he added.

If War Should Come

Products Of Canada Will Be Bulwark Of Safety For England

Arthur G. Street, farmer and author, of Salisbury, Wiltshire, England, said at Ottawa recently that "if a war does come the products of Canada will come as the greatest bulwark of national safety for the people of England."

"Produce from Canada can go to England without passing a hostile country while produce from other countries would have to pass unfriendly territory and may never reach England," he said in an address at an agriculture field day.

"The duty of the British farmer is to keep up the fertility of his soil in peace time and I appeal to you to do the same."

"I will ask you to do your best for the farmers of Britain and Canada and not to quarrel as there is room for both of us."

Overheard on the street: "People are funny. I'll bet if a fellow had to belong to a club and pay two dollars in order to push a lawn-mower, there'd be a waiting list a yard long of fellows just dying to have a try at it!"

Jenny Lind realized net receipts of $176,675.09 from her American concert tour under the management of F. T. Barnum.

Little Helps For This Week

That we may prove what is that good and acceptable, and perfect will of God. Romans 13:2.

"You knowest what is best. And who but Thee, O God, hath power to know?"
In Thy great will my trusting heart shall rest.
Beneath Thy will my humble head shall bow.

To those who are His all things are not only easy to be borne, but even to be gladly chosen. Their will is united to that will which moves heaven and earth and gives laws to angels and rules the courses of the world. It is a wonderful gift of God to man, of which we who know so little must speak little. To be at the centre of that motion which is everlasting rest, to be sheltered in the peace of God where all hearts are stayed and all hopes fulfilled is a wonderful experience. Only those who have had it can understand the text "Thou shalt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee." It is the very secret and mystery of solid peace within us, sign all to His will without the least contrain.

Canadian Singers In England

Find Choral Efforts On Par With Those Of Old Country

Canadians who went to London to sing in the coronation choir enjoyed their visit and found Canadian choral efforts quite on a par with those of England's.

Taunted from different parts of the Dominion the singers received their music before they left Canada but did not meet until they attended the first practice in London.

"We found that we could quite easily keep up with the efforts of the other members of the choir and came to the conclusion that Canada is really suffering from an inferiority complex as far as her choirs are concerned—they are quite as good as anything we have met over there," said William J. Miller of Ottawa Temple choir.

Rector Suggests Using Common Sense Regarding Whale Story

Is the story of Jonah and the whale true? The Rev. D. E. Hart-Davies, rector of St. Thomas's Church, Edinburgh, raised this question in a lecture in London.
